THE NATURE INSTITUTE FOREST TO TURN “EVIL”

Environmental organization opens preserve for Halloween scares

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

October 9, 2015

Godfrey, Ill– Ghosts and ghouls keep Halloween fright traditions alive, but a local environmental conservation organization believes that nothing will get this holiday’s admirers more afraid than their own woodland trails.

The Nature Institute (TNI), located at 2213 South Levis Lane in Godfrey, Ill, is introducing a new Halloween event, “Evil Forest”. After countless requests, TNI is offering a different look at their preserve: A haunted one. On Saturday, Oct. 17 from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. guests will take a hike through the spooky trails. Admission is $10 per person. This event is most suitable for participants of 10 years of age and older.

This event is partnered with the already sold out “14th Annual Enchanted Forest”, which is the night before. That event will continue to offer a friendly alternative for little ones, but TNI feels it is time to extend that holiday fun for the older kids too.

Event goers should expect a good, old fashioned scaring. Hikes will take place all evening long and no reservations are required.

Want to volunteer to help make this event a success or does your child need volunteer hours to fulfill for school? TNI is still accepting volunteers. There are many orientation training days for those interested in volunteering. Anyone interested in helping should contact TNI at (618) 466-9930 for more details.

For more information on “Evil Forest” or other TNI events, please contact the office at (618) 466-9930 or info@TheNatureInstitute.org. People may also visit the organization newly improved website, www.TheNatureInstitute.org.
